

BROOKSIE WELLS

FOLK SINGER SONGWRITER

ABOUT

Brooksie Wells is a folk singer-songwriter whose career bridges Southern roots, the New York music scene, and decades of storytelling through song. Discovered by Bobby Darin at 19, she wrote for Chappell Music, performed with Kid Creole and the Coconuts, and recorded early work connected to John Lennon's Elephant's Memory. After stepping away to raise her family, she returned to music in 2008, shifting into folk songwriting. Her most recent album, Stops Time, reached #4 on the U.S. Folk Charts, marking her third consecutive Top 10 release.

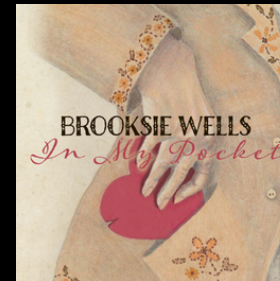

HIGHLIGHTS

- #4 U.S. Folk Charts (Stops Time) and 3 consecutive Top 10 folk albums
- Featured performances at Grey Fox Bluegrass Festival (NY) and Eddie's Attic (Atlanta, GA)
- National radio features including North Country Public Radio and WDVX "Blue Plate Special"
- Collaborations with Ronnie McCoury, Frank Solivan, and members of The Charlie Daniels Band

PRESS QUOTE

"Singular is too inadequate a word to describe Brooksie Wells. Her mixture of tempo, melody, and imagery—each often changed within a single song—would be enough to make even the most travelled purveyor of singer-songwriters sit up and take notice."

-Alan Cackett, UK

Maybe Not
In My Pocket

Tend the Nets
Stops Time

Silver Spoon
North East Rising Sun

brooksie@been-there.com

540.272.4554

brooksiewells.com

@brooksiewells

youtube.com/@brooksiewells

